Tawny Peaks, a former topless dancer, is selling her breast implants on EBay. Peaks gained notoriety in 1998 after her and the nightclub she danced at were sued for battery after her breasts hit a patron of the nightclub.

The man was attending a bachelor’s party and said he received whiplash after being hit with one of her size 69-HH breasts. The suit was settled on “The People’s Court”. Her breast were deemed to not be dangerous. Peaks was quoted as saying, “Somebody might bid on it. It’s like the first boob to be sued over in a lawsuit.”

Peaks said she was watching a television show about odd things that are sold on EBay and though, “Why not...I don’t need it anymore”. She will only sell on signed implant and keep the other one “for good measure”.

She received a breast reduction in 1999 after she decided to retire from dancing and start a new life. She is now a mother and homemaker in the Detroit area.

The auction will end on Saturday, March 5. So far she has received 123 bids and tops at $14,100.

In Celebration of Women’s Heritage Month
the Multicultural Development Committee (MDC) presents:

Iron Jawed Angels

When: SATURDAY, March 5th 7:30pm
Where: The BURROW

This is the story of two important women in the history of suffrage in the United States. Alice Paul and Lucy Burns began a more radical branch of women fighting for the right to vote. They found themselves up against powerful men, an atmosphere of chauvinism, an unconcerned President (Woodrow Wilson) and even their own more conservative counterparts. See these inspiring women risk their lives and loves to fight for what they believe in.
